

MAC LESSON #96

FIX THAT DARN CURSOR

When OS X 1.4.8 arrived on scene, I noticed that my cursor looked different. It had a black rectangle around it. How annoying.

If you have this rectangle/cursor and also find it annoying, here's how to make it go away.

Open System Preferences (In your Doc or under the Apple logo) and then click on Universal Access and then open the Seeing tab. In the Zoom function area, select Options and click to unselect Show Preview Rectangle when zoomed out. Close out, and you're done.
